My New Year Resolution

1st January, 2010

This is the first day of 2010. I made a New Year resolution in this year. I hope I can improve my English so that I can go to my “dream school”.

Although my English dictation and assessment results are usually good, My English is not very good. English is very important because people in a lot of countries or areas speak English. If I do not work hard on English, I will not be able to communicate with people from foreign countries. So I will pay more attention in English lessons. If I do not know how to do English homework, I will ask my classmates or my tutor to teach me. I will also do more English exercises to improve my English.

If I can improve my English, I will be filled with happiness and excitement. My parents will be thrilled because I can go to my dream school. However, I know it is not easy, so I need to work hard to make my dream come true.
